

HANSA-PARK® Guide for Visitors with Disabilities and Wheelchair Users

HANSA-PARK welcomes visits by disabled people and will do all that is possible to ensure a safe and pleasurable stay. However, visiting a leisure park with its many ride attractions and interactive games that range from quiet all the way to extremely fast is not something you do every day. The safety of our guests is of foremost concern to us, and we and our guests must strictly comply with the regulations imposed by TÜV and the manufacturers of the attractions. BUT: Even if you meet all the requirements and safety regulations in principle, ultimately it is up to you to decide whether the attraction is suitable for you and your particular physical or health condition.

Admission Rules and Regulations

When guests visit the Park, who present a disabled pass issued by a government authority, we have a special duty to ensure that all the rules and regulations are complied with and that either the disabled guests themselves or - if mentioned in the pass - their carers can make informed decisions on whether an attraction is suitable for the disabled guest or not. Experts refer to that as the duty to maintain safety.

Please read our admission rules and regulations carefully and try to learn as much about them as possible prior to your visit. You can also give us a call or send us an email if you have any further questions.

One more thing: Please do not ask us or our staff to make an exception to the rules. The admission rules and regulations have been developed in conjunction with various expert committees, and they are binding on us and our employees. What admission regulations apply to your visit depends on the category of the disabled pass you are holding. We are not permitted to make any decisions that deviate from the content of your pass.

Attractions

We are delighted to have you as our guest today. Our attractions have been designed with visitors with disabilities and restricted mobility in mind. However, there is always room for improvement and we welcome your feedback and suggestions. Please approach our employees who will be more than happy to assist you any time. You may also use our feedback box at the exit.

Most of our attractions, including our rides, are suitable for all guests. However, the use of some of our rides is subject to special height and age restrictions as well as physical fitness. We are obligated to comply with the safety regulations imposed by government authorities, TÜV - the German Technical Control Board, and the respective manufacturers. In particular they apply to our guests with disabilities!

Please note that even if helpers and disabled guests meet all safety requirements, they should always use their discretion when deciding whether to go on a ride or not. Please note that companions are generally liable for the actions of the guests in their care.

- According to the TÜV SÜD safety regulations that apply to all our ride attractions passengers must be able to leave the ride attraction unaided, though our trained employees will be present and give the necessary instructions. In addition, passengers must be able to anticipate and adapt to the movement of the ride. If this is not possible for guests with visual disabilities, they are not allowed on the ride. We hope that you understand and accept the decision made in the interest of your safety.
